HOW TO MEASURE

Start by drawing your counters as simple rectangles and squares. The layout doesn't have to be to scale, but try to keep the right proportions. Sketch every counter, including islands, peninsulas, bar tops, and ledges. Indicate the placement of your appliances with clear words. Measurements along the wall are most helpful.

Mark the sink as a rounded rectangle. For the purpose of your drawing, size and shape do not matter. Mark it simply as "Sink"

Backsplashes are commonly installed wherever the counter meets a wall. The easiest way to indicate backsplashes on your layout is to draw an "X" along the back of each counter where you wish to have a backsplash. If you're not sure which backsplash option is best for your kitchen, ask us to estimate the price for multiple options, such as tile or none at all.

If your kitchen includes a cooktop (as opposed to a stand-alone oven), mark its location with a rectangle. Mark it simply as "Cooktop"

Make SURE you include any measurements for extended overhangs on islands or peninsulas where you may want knee space for seating

Finally, mark the finished edges with an "F." Mark any edges that would be exposed except edges where the counter meets an appliance.
